

Memorandum 89-75

Subject: Study L-3023 - Uniform TOD Security Registration Act

Attached is a draft of a recommendation proposing enactment in California of the new Uniform TOD Security Registration Act. This act was prepared by the Uniform Law Commissioners to permit a security to be registered with a transfer-on-death beneficiary. The stock transfer agents support the concept of the act because of the difficulty they have with determining the appropriate documents required for each state to justify a transfer of registration after the death of the registered owner.

The recommendation deals with one matter not dealt with in the uniform act. It is common for married persons in California to register their stock as either "joint tenants" (in which case a problem arises in establishing that the stock is actually community property in order to obtain a stepped up basis for the entire property after the death of one of the spouses) or as "community property" (in which case it may be necessary to probate the stock or to obtain a court order confirming title in the surviving spouse in order to establish that the surviving spouse is entitled to transfer the stock). The recommendation proposes to authorize registration of a security as "community property held in joint tenancy" JT TEN (COM PROP), which will provide for easy transfer without any court proceeding after death of one spouse and, at the same time, make clear that the property is community property entitled to a stepped up basis on the entire property. Under the uniform act, one effect of registration of a security as "community property" with the designation of a TOD beneficiary is that the right of survivorship of the co-owning spouses may not be altered by will. The proposed addition to the uniform act to permit registration as "community property held in joint tenancy form" would have the same effect; the property is community property in all respects except that the right of survivorship of the co-owning spouses may not be altered by will. If it is desired to permit a spouse to dispose of his or her share of the community property security by will, this can be accomplished by registering the security as "community property" and not designating a TOD beneficiary. This scheme is consistent with that provided under the multiple-party accounts law.

The uniform act arises in part from a letter the California Law Revision Commission received from a mutual fund provider urging that express authority be provided for designation of TOD beneficiaries. The Uniform Commissioners worked with stock transfer agents and others in drafting the uniform act. The staff recommends that the attached tentative recommendation be distributed to interested persons and organizations for review and comment.

TENTATIVE RECOMMENDATION

relating to

UNIFORM TOD SECURITY REGISTRATION ACT

October 1989

This tentative recommendation is being distributed so that interested persons will be advised of the Commission's tentative conclusions and can make their views known to the Commission. Any comments sent to the Commission will be a part of the public record and will be considered at a public meeting when the Commission determines the provisions it will include in legislation the Commission plans to recommend to the Legislature in 1990. It is just as important to advise the Commission that you approve the tentative recommendation as it is to advise the Commission that you believe revisions should be made in the tentative recommendation.

COMMENTS ON THIS TENTATIVE RECOMMENDATION SHOULD BE RECEIVED BY THE COMMISSION NOT LATER THAN NOVEMBER 15, 1989.

The Commission often substantially revises tentative recommendations as a result of the comments it receives. Hence, this tentative recommendation is not necessarily the recommendation the Commission will submit to the Legislature.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

This tentative recommendation proposes the enactment of the Uniform TOD Security Registration Act. This new uniform act allows the owner of investment securities (stocks, bonds, etc.) to register the securities in transfer-on-death form. This recommendation is made pursuant to 1980 Cal. Stat. res. ch. 37.

08/25/89

RECOMMENDATION

The Law Revision Commission recommends that the Uniform TOD Security Registration Act¹ be enacted in California. This uniform act allows the owner of investment securities (stocks, bonds, etc.) to register the securities in transfer-on-death form. Mutual fund shares and accounts maintained by a broker to reflect a customer's holdings of securities (so-called "street account") are also covered by the uniform act.

The uniform act enables an issuer, transfer agent, or broker to transfer securities directly to the designated transferee on the owner's death. Thus, transfer-on-death registration would achieve parity for securities with existing transfer-on-death provisions for US savings bonds, bank accounts, life insurance, death benefits under retirement plans, and revocable trusts. The TOD registration for securities is designed to give securities owners an alternative to the use of joint tenancy registrations as a way of arranging for a nonprobate transfer at death.

The uniform act permits securities to be registered by a married couple as "community property" with a TOD beneficiary designation. This form of registration imposes a right of survivorship on the co-owning married persons that cannot be altered by will.² The

1. The new Uniform TOD Security Registration Act was approved and recommended for enactment in all the states by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in 1989. The new uniform act was approved as an addition to the Uniform Probate Code as a part of a revised Article VI (non-probate transfers) and as a separate free standing act.

2. Community property otherwise than in a survivorship setting is negated for registration in beneficiary form because persons desiring to signal independent death beneficiaries of each individual's fractional interest in a co-owned security normally will split their holding into separate registrations of the number of units previously constituting their fractional share. Once divided, each can name his or her own choice of death beneficiary. See Uniform Probate Code § 6-302, Comment.

legislation recommended by the Commission expands this concept by adding a provision that permits a married couple to register a security as "community property held in joint tenancy form." This new form of registration is allowed whether or not the security is registered with a TOD beneficiary designation. The right of survivorship created by the new form of registration cannot be altered by will. This makes it easy for the surviving spouse to transfer the security after the death of the other spouse³ and, at the same time, makes clear that the security is community property for purposes of federal and state income taxes.⁴

3. If a security is registered as "community property," there is a possibility that the will of the first spouse to die may dispose of his or her share of the community property security. Accordingly, it must be established in some manner that no such disposition took place before the surviving spouse may transfer the security. Ordinarily, it is necessary for the surviving spouse to obtain a court order determining that the surviving spouse is the owner of the security or to use the affidavit procedure under Sections 13100-13116 (collection or transfer of personal property of small estate) to establish the ownership of the surviving spouse. Since a security registered as community property in joint tenancy form may not be affected by a will, the property passes to the surviving spouse the same as any other joint tenancy property, and upon the death of a spouse the transfer agent can treat the property as if it were joint tenancy property.

4. Registration of a security as "community property held in joint tenancy form" will make it easier to obtain a stepped up basis for the entire property for purposes of California and federal income tax purposes. For state and federal income purposes, basis is determined differently depending on whether property is characterized as community or as true joint tenancy (separate) property. If property is community property, the entire property, not just the decedent's half, acquires a new basis equal to its fair market value at the valuation date. If the property is separate property, only the decedent's portion of the property acquires a new basis. It is possible to establish for the purpose of the new basis for income tax purposes that community property registered as joint tenancy property is actually community property. But to do so, it may be necessary to probate the property or to have its ownership confirmed to the surviving spouse as community property, and the tax authorities are not necessarily bound even then. See 1 California Decedent Estate Practice § 4.14 (Cal. Cont. Ed. Bar Rev. 2/89). Registration of a security as "community property held in joint tenancy form" will make clear that the property is community property, thereby avoiding the need to probate the property or to have its ownership confirmed to the surviving spouse in order to establish that the entire property is entitled to a stepped up basis.

This recommendation would be effectuated by enactment of the following provisions.

PART 3. UNIFORM TOD SECURITY REGISTRATION ACT
(proposed to be added to Division 5 of the Probate Code)

§ 5500. Short title; purposes; rules of construction

5500. (a) This part shall be known as and may be cited as the Uniform TOD Security Registration Act.

(b) This part shall be liberally construed and applied to promote its underlying purposes and policy.

(c) The underlying purposes and policy of this act are to (1) encourage development of a title form for use by individuals that is effective, without probate and estate administration, for transferring property at death in accordance with directions of a deceased owner of a security as included in the title form in which the security is held and (2) protect issuers offering and implementing the new title form.

(d) Unless displaced by the particular provisions of this part, the principles of law and equity supplement its provisions.

Comment. Section 5500 is the same in substance as portions of the free standing Uniform TOD Security Registration Act (1989). As to the construction of provisions drawn from uniform acts, see Section 2(b). Subdivision (b) is drawn from Section 1-102(a) of the Uniform Probate Code (1987). Subdivision (d) is drawn from Section 1-103 of the Uniform Probate Code (1987). For a severability provision, see Section 11.

§ 5501. Definitions

5501. In this part:

(a) "Beneficiary form" of registration means a registration of a security that indicates the present owner of the security and the intention of the owner regarding who will become the owner of the security upon the death of the owner.

(b) "Register," including its derivatives, means to issue a certificate showing the ownership of a certificated security or, in the case of an uncertificated security, to initiate or transfer an account showing ownership of securities.

(c) "Security" means a share, participation, or other interest in property, in a business, or in an obligation of an enterprise or other issuer, and includes a certificated security, an uncertificated security, and a security account.

(d) "Security account" means (1) a reinvestment account associated with a security, a securities account with a broker, a cash balance in a brokerage account, cash, interest, earnings, or dividends earned or declared on a security in an account, a reinvestment account, or a brokerage account; or (2) a cash balance or other property held for or due to the owner of a security as a replacement for or product of an account security, whether or not credited to the account before the owner's death.

(e) "Registering entity" means a person who originates or transfers a security title by registration. The term includes a broker that maintains security accounts for customers and a transfer agent or other person acting for or as an issuer of securities.

Comment. Section 5501 is the same in substance as Section 6-301 of the Uniform Probate Code (Uniform TOD Security Registration Act) (1989).

"Security" is defined as provided in Section 8-102 of the Uniform Commercial Code (1977) and includes shares of mutual funds and other registered investment companies. The defined term "security account" is not intended to include securities held in the name of a bank or similar institution as nominee for the benefit of a trust.

"Survive" is not defined. No effort is made in this part to define survival as it is for purposes of intestate succession in Section 6403 which requires survival by an heir of the ancestor for 120 hours. For purposes of this part, survive is used in its common law sense of outliving another for any time interval no matter how brief.

§ 5502. Ownership requirement to obtain registration in beneficiary form

5502. Only individuals whose registration of a security shows sole ownership by one individual or multiple ownership by two or more with right of survivorship, rather than as tenants in common, may obtain registration in beneficiary form. Multiple owners of a security registered in beneficiary form hold as joint tenants with right of survivorship, as tenants by the entireties, or as owners of community property held in survivorship form, and not as tenants in common. The right of survivorship between married persons arising under this section from the registration of a security as community property in beneficiary form may not be altered by will.

Comment. The first two sentences of Section 5502 are the same as Section 6-302 of the Uniform Probate Code (Uniform TOD Security Registration Act) (1989). The third sentence is not found in the uniform act but is consistent with the uniform act section. The added sentence merely makes explicit one effect of registration of a security as "community property" in beneficiary form.

Section 5502 is designed to prevent co-owners from designating any death beneficiary other than one who is to take only upon survival of all co-owners. It coerces co-owning registrants to signal whether they hold as joint tenants with right of survivorship (JT TEN), as tenants by the entireties (T ENT), or as owners of community property. Also, it imposes survivorship on co-owners holding in a beneficiary form that fails to specify a survivorship form of holding. The third sentence, which is comparable to Section 5305(c) (multiple-party accounts), makes clear that the right of survivorship between married persons arising from the registration as "community property" in beneficiary form may not be altered by the will. See also Section 5511 (community property held in joint tenancy form).

Tenancy in common and community property otherwise than in a survivorship setting is negated for registration in beneficiary form because persons desiring to signal independent death beneficiaries for each individual's fractional interest in a co-owned security normally will split their holding into separate registrations of the number of units previously constituting their fractional share. Once divided, each can name his or her own choice of death beneficiary.

The term "individual," as used in this section, limits those who may register as owner or co-owner of a security in beneficiary form to natural persons. Note, however, that the section does not restrict an individual using this ownership form as to the choice of death beneficiary. Any legal entity may be designated beneficiary in a registration in beneficiary form. So, an individual owner or individual co-owners may designate a church, trust company, family corporation, or other entity, as well as any individual, as beneficiary.

§ 5503. Law authorizing registration in beneficiary form

5503. A security may be registered in beneficiary form if the form is authorized by this or a similar statute of the state of organization of the issuer or registering entity, the registering entity's principal office, the office of its transfer agent or its office making the registration, or by this or a similar statute of the law of the state listed as the owner's address at the time of registration. A registration governed by the law of a jurisdiction in which this or similar legislation is not in force or was not in force at the time the registration in beneficiary form was made is nevertheless presumed to be valid and authorized as a matter of contract law.

Comment. Section 5503 is the same as Section 6-303 of the Uniform Probate Code (Uniform TOD Security Registration Act) (1989). The section encourages registrations in beneficiary form to be made whenever a state with which either of the parties to a registration has contact has enacted this or a similar statute. Thus, a registration in beneficiary form of X Company shares might rely on this part's enactment in X Company's state of incorporation, or in the state of incorporation of X Company's transfer agent. Or, an enactment by the state of the issuer's principal office, the transfer agent's principal office, or of the issuer's office making the registration also would validate the registration. An enactment of the state of the registering owner's address at time of registration also might be used for validation purposes. The last sentence of Section 5503 is designed to establish a statutory presumption that a general principle of law is available to achieve a result like that made possible by this part.

§ 5504. Origination of registration in beneficiary form

5504. A security, whether evidenced by certificate or account, is registered in beneficiary form if the registration designates a beneficiary to take the ownership at the death of the owner or the deaths of all multiple owners.

Comment. Section 5504 is the same as Section 6-304 of the Uniform Probate Code (Uniform TOD Security Registration Act) (1989). As noted in the Comment to Section 5502, this part places no restriction on who may be designated beneficiary in a registration in beneficiary form. Any legal entity may be designated beneficiary in a registration in beneficiary form.

§ 5505. Form of registration in beneficiary form

5505. Registration in beneficiary form may be shown by the words "transfer on death", the abbreviation "TOD", the words "pay on death", or the abbreviation "POD", following the name of the registered owner and preceding the name of a beneficiary.

Comment. Section 5505 is the same as Section 6-305 of the Uniform Probate Code (Uniform TOD Security Registration Act) (1989). The abbreviation POD is included for use without regard for whether the subject is a money claim against an issuer, such as its own note or bond for money loaned, or is a claim to securities evidenced by conventional title documentation. The use of POD in a registration in beneficiary form of shares in a registered investment company should not be taken as a signal that the investment is to be sold or redeemed on the owner's death so that the sums realized may be "paid" to the death beneficiary. Rather, only a transfer on death, not a liquidation on death, is indicated.

§ 5506. Effect of registration in beneficiary form

5506. The designation of a beneficiary on a registration in beneficiary form does not affect ownership until the owner's death. A registration of a security in beneficiary form may be cancelled or changed at any time by all then surviving owners, or by the sole owner, without the consent of the beneficiary.

Comment. Section 5506 is the same in substance as Section 6-306 of the Uniform Probate Code (Uniform TOD Security Registration Act) (1989). The section simply affirms the right of a sole owner, or the right of all multiple owners, to end a TOD beneficiary registration without the assent of the beneficiary. The section says nothing about how a TOD beneficiary designation may be cancelled, meaning that the registering entity's guidelines, if any, may be relevant. See Section 5510. If the guidelines have nothing on the point, cancellation of a beneficiary designation presumably would be effected by a reregistration showing a different beneficiary or omitting reference to a TOD beneficiary.

§ 5507. Ownership on death of owner

5507. On death of a sole owner or the last to die of multiple owners, ownership of securities registered in beneficiary form passes to the beneficiary or beneficiaries who survive all owners. On proof of death of all owners and compliance with any applicable requirements of the registering entity, a security registered in beneficiary form may be reregistered in the name of the beneficiary or beneficiaries who survived the death of all owners. Until division of the security following the death of all owners, multiple beneficiaries surviving the death of all owners hold their interests as tenants in common. If no beneficiary survives the death of all owners, the security belongs to the estate of the deceased sole owner or the estate of the last to die of multiple owners.

Comment. Section 5507 is the same as Section 6-307 of the Uniform Probate Code (Uniform TOD Security Registration Act) (1989). Even though multiple owners of a security registered in beneficiary form hold with right of survivorship, no survivorship rights attend the positions of multiple beneficiaries who become entitled to securities by reason of having survived the sole owner or the last to die of multiple owners. Issuers (and registering entities) who decide to accept registrations in beneficiary form involving more than one primary beneficiary also should provide by rule whether fractional shares will be registered in the names of surviving beneficiaries where the number of shares held by the deceased owner does not divide without remnant among the survivors. If fractional shares are not desired, the issuer may wish to provide for sale of odd shares and division of proceeds, for an uneven distribution with the first or last named to receive the odd share, or for other resolution. Section 5508 deals with whether intermediaries have any obligation to offer beneficiary registrations of any sort; Section 5510 enables issuers to adopt rules controlling the details of applications for registrations they decide to accept and procedures for implementing such registrations after an owner's death.

The statement that a security registered in beneficiary form is in the deceased owner's estate when no beneficiary survives the owner is not intended to prevent application of any anti-lapse statute that might direct a non-probate transfer on death to the surviving issue of a beneficiary who failed to survive the owner. Rather, the statement is intended only to indicate that the registering entity involved should transfer or reregister the security as directed by the decedent's personal representative.

See the Comment to Section 5501 regarding the meaning of "survive" for purposes of this part.

§ 5508. Protection of registering entity

5508. (a) A registering entity is not obliged to offer or to accept a request for security registration in beneficiary form. If a registration in beneficiary form is offered by a registering entity, the owner requesting registration in beneficiary form assents to the protections given to the registering entity by this part.

(b) By accepting a request for registration of a security in beneficiary form, the registering entity agrees that the registration will be implemented as provided in this part.

(c) A registering entity that registers a transfer of a security in accordance with Section 5507 and does so in good faith reliance on the registration, on this part, and on information provided to it by affidavit of the personal representative of the deceased owner, or by the surviving beneficiary or by the surviving beneficiary's representatives, or other information available to the registering entity, is discharged from all claims to the security by the estate, creditors, heirs, or devisees of the deceased owner. The protections of this part do not extend to a reregistration or payment made after a registering entity has received written notice from a claimant to an interest in the security objecting to implementation of a registration in beneficiary form. No other notice or other information shown to have been available to the registering entity affects its right to the protection provided by this part.

(d) The protection provided by this part to the registering entity of a security does not affect the rights of beneficiaries in disputes between themselves and other claimants to ownership of the security transferred or its value or proceeds.

Comment. Section 5508 is the same in substance as Section 6-308 of the Uniform Probate Code (Uniform TOD Security Registration Act) (1989). It is to be noted that the "request" for a registration in beneficiary form may be in any form chosen by a registering entity. This part does not prescribe a particular form and does not impose record-keeping requirements. Registering entities' business practices, including any industry standards or rules of transfer agent associations, will control.

The written notice referred to in subdivision (c) would qualify as a notice under Section 8403 of the Uniform Commercial Code.

"Good faith" as used in subdivision (c) is intended to mean "honesty in fact and the observance of reasonable commercial standards of fair dealing in the trade," as specified in Section 2103(1)(b) of the Uniform Commercial Code.

The protections described in this section are designed to meet any questions regarding registering entity protection that may not be foreclosed by issuer protections provided in the Uniform Commercial Code. For a summary of the relevant Uniform Commercial Code provisions, see Welman, Transfer-On-Death Securities Registration: A New Title Form, 21 Ga. L. Rev. 789, n.90 at 823 (1987).

§ 5509. Nontestamentary transfer on death; rights of creditors

5509. (a) A transfer on death resulting from a registration in beneficiary form is effective by reason of the contract regarding the registration between the owner and the registering entity and this part and is not to be considered as testamentary and is not invalid because the registration does not comply with the requirements for execution of a will, and this code does not invalidate the registration.

(b) This part does not limit the rights of creditors of security owners against beneficiaries and other transferees under other laws of this State.

Comment. Section 5509 is the same as Section 6-309 of the Uniform Probate Code (Uniform TOD Security Registration Act) (1989) with the addition of the last portion of subdivision (a) which is drawn from Section 160 [Section 5000 of the new Probate Code].

§ 5510. Registering entity's guidelines; illustrative forms

5510. (a) A registering entity offering to accept registrations in beneficiary form may establish the terms and conditions under which it will receive and implement requests for registration in this form, including requests for cancellation of previously registered TOD beneficiary designations and requests for reregistration to effect a change of beneficiary.

(b) The guidelines established pursuant to subdivision (a) may provide for (i) proving death, (ii) avoiding or resolving a problem concerning fractional shares, (iii) designating primary and contingent beneficiaries, and (iv) substituting a named beneficiary's descendants to take in the place of the named beneficiary in the event of the beneficiary's death. Substitution may be indicated by appending to the name of the primary beneficiary the letters LDPS, standing for "lineal descendants per stirpes". This designation substitutes a deceased beneficiary's descendants who survive the owner for a beneficiary who fails to so survive, the descendants to be identified and to share in accordance with the law of the beneficiary's domicile at death governing inheritance by descendants of an intestate. Other forms of identifying beneficiaries who are to take on one or more contingencies, and rules for providing proofs and assurances needed to satisfy reasonable concerns by registering entities regarding conditions and identities relevant to accurate implementation of registrations in beneficiary form, may be contained in a registering entity's guidelines.

(c) Illustrations of registrations in beneficiary form which a registering entity may authorize by guidelines include the following:

(1) Sole owner-sole beneficiary: John S Brown TOD (or POD) John S Brown Jr.

(2) Married owners as community property with survivorship rights-sole beneficiary: John S Brown Mary B Brown COM PROP TOD John S Brown Jr.

(3) Married owners as community property held in joint tenancy form-sole beneficiary: John S Brown Mary B Brown JT TEN (COM PROP) TOD John S Brown Jr.

(4) Multiple owners-sole beneficiary: John S Brown Mary B Brown JT TEN TOD John S Brown Jr.

(5) Multiple owners-primary and secondary (substituted) beneficiaries: John S Brown Mary B Brown, JT TEN TOD John S Brown Jr SUB BENE Peter Q Brown or John S Brown Mary B Brown JT TEN TOD John S Brown Jr LDPS.

Comment. Section 5510 is the same in substance as Section 6-310 of the Uniform Probate Code (Uniform TOD Security Registration Act) (1989) with the addition of paragraphs (2) and (3) of subdivision (c) to recognize that married owners may register securities as community property in beneficiary form. See Sections 5502 and 5511 and the Comments to those sections.

Use of "and" or "or" between the names of persons registered as co-owners is unnecessary under this part and should be discouraged. If used, the two words should have the same meaning insofar as concerns a title form; i.e., that of "and" to indicate that both named persons own the asset.

Descendants of a named beneficiary who take by virtue of a "LDPS" designation appended to a beneficiary's name take as TOD beneficiaries rather than as intestate successors. If no descendant of a pre-deceased primary beneficiary survives the owner, the security passes as a part of the owner's estate as provided in Section 5507.

§ 5511. Registration as "community property held in joint tenancy form," "community property," or "joint tenancy" property"

5511. (a) A registering entity may accept registrations of securities as "community property held in joint tenancy form," whether or not the security is registered in beneficiary form. A registration of a security as community property held in joint tenancy form may be indicated by the designation "JT TEN (COM PROP)" or by another designation established by the guidelines established pursuant to subdivision (a) of Section 5510. The registration of a security as "community property held in joint tenancy form" does not alter the community character of the property or community rights in the property, but a right of survivorship between parties married to each other arising from the registration of a security as community property held in joint tenancy form may not be altered by will.

(b) If a security is registered as "community property" and is not registered in beneficiary form, the ownership of the security during lifetime and after the death of a spouse is governed by the law governing community property generally.

(c) Nothing in this section affects the law applicable where a security owned by married persons is registered in "joint tenancy" and is not registered in beneficiary form.

Comment. Section 5511 is a provision not found in the uniform act. Subdivision (a) is designed to serve two purposes:

(1) The subdivision makes it easier to obtain a stepped up basis for the entire property for purposes of California and federal income tax purposes. For state and federal income purposes basis is determined differently depending on whether property is characterized as community or as true joint tenancy (separate) property. If property is community property, the entire property, not just the decedent's half, acquires a new basis equal to its fair market value at the valuation date. If the property is separate property, only the decedent's portion of the property acquires a new basis. It is possible to establish for the purpose of the new basis for income tax purposes that a security registered as "joint tenancy" is actually community property. But to do so, it may be necessary to probate the property or to have its ownership confirmed to the surviving spouse as community property. See 1 California Decedent Estate Practice § 4.14 (Cal. Cont. Ed. Bar Rev. 2/89). Registration of a security as "community property held in joint tenancy" will make clear that the property is community property, thereby avoiding the need to probate the property or to have its ownership confirmed to the surviving spouse as community property in order to establish that the property actually is community property and, thereby, to obtain a stepped up basis for the entire property.

(2) The subdivision permits a surviving spouse to transfer title to a security registered as "community property in joint tenancy form" JT TEN (COM PROP) without the need to obtain a court order determining that the surviving spouse is the owner of the security or to use the affidavit procedure under Sections 13100-13116 (collection or transfer of personal property of small estate) to establish the ownership of the surviving spouse. Since a security registered as "community property held in joint tenancy form" is not affected by a will, the property passes to the surviving spouse the same as any other joint tenancy property, and upon the death of a spouse, the transfer agent may treat the property as if it were joint tenancy property.

Subdivision (b) recognizes that a security may be registered as "community property." If the security is registered in beneficiary form, the right of survivorship of the co-owning spouses may not be altered by will. See Section 5502 and the Comment thereto. If the security registered as community property is not registered in beneficiary form, subdivision (b) makes clear that the rules applicable to community property generally apply, including the right of a spouse to dispose of his or her share of the property by will.

Subdivision (c) recognizes that a security may be community property notwithstanding that it has been registered by married persons as joint tenancy. See discussion supra this Comment.

§ 5512. Application of part

5512. This part applies to registrations of securities in beneficiary form made before or after January 1, 1991, by decedents dying on or after January 1, 1991.

CONFORMING REVISIONS

Commercial Code § 8308 (amended). Indorsements; instructions

8308. (1) An indorsement of a certificated security in registered form is made when an appropriate person signs on it or on a separate document an assignment or transfer of the security or a power to assign or transfer it or his or her signature is written without more upon the back of the security.

(2) An indorsement may be in blank or special. An indorsement in blank includes an indorsement to bearer. A special indorsement specifies to whom the security is to be transferred, or who has power to transfer it. A holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement.

(3) An indorsement purporting to be only a part of a certificated security representing units intended by the issuer to be separately transferable is effective to the extent of the indorsement.

(4) An "instruction" is an order to the issuer of an uncertificated security requesting that the transfer, pledge, or release from pledge of the uncertificated security specified therein be registered.

(5) An instruction originated by an appropriate person is any of the following:

(a) A writing signed by an appropriate person.

(b) A communication to the issuer in any form agreed upon in a writing signed by the issuer and an appropriate person.

If an instruction has been originated by an appropriate person but is incomplete in any other respect, any person may complete it as authorized and the issuer may rely on it as completed even though it has been completed incorrectly.

(6) "An appropriate person" in subdivision (1) means the person specified by the certificated security or by special indorsement to be entitled to the security.

(7) "An appropriate person" in subdivision (5) means:

(a) For an instruction to transfer or pledge an uncertificated security which is then not subject to a registered pledge, the registered owner.

(b) For an instruction to transfer or release an uncertificated security which is then subject to a registered pledge, the registered pledgee.

(8) In addition to the persons designated in subdivisions (6) and (7), "an appropriate person" in subdivisions (1) and (5) includes all of the following:

(a) If the person designated is described as a fiduciary but is no longer serving in the described capacity, either that person or his or her successor.

(b) The beneficiary of a security registered in beneficiary form (as defined in subdivision (a) of Section 5501 of the Probate Code) if the beneficiary has survived the death of the registered owner or owners.

(c) If the person designated is an individual and is without capacity to act by virtue of death, incompetence, infancy, or otherwise, his or her executor, administrator, guardian, or like fiduciary.

(d) If the persons designated are described as more than one person as tenants by the entirety or with right of survivorship and by reason by death all cannot sign, the survivor or survivors.

(e) A person having power to sign under applicable law or controlling instrument.

Comment. Section 8308 is amended to add paragraph (b) to subdivision (8). This is a technical amendment to make clear that a TOD beneficiary is an "appropriate person" when the beneficiary has survived the registered owner or owners of a security registered in beneficiary form under the Uniform TOD Security Registration Act (1989). See Probate Code §§ 5500-5512.
